this college ballot for president. It is really significant in that it gives an inkling of how the representative citizens of nearly every state in the union stand in the campaign. The 2.144 votes of these students represent groups of students who have but recently come from their homes in practically every state of the country. They are not students who have been at the college for a whole term, or for any length of time. They recently left home for the summer course, and will, probably all be back in their homes in time to vote in the real election.

Wilson Without the South.

One thing of particular interest in this college ballot is that even without the "Solld South" President Wilson gets a handsome majority over Hughes. Another surprise to the republican contingent was that the president carried many of the central surprise to the republicans came
